Essay

When you grow up, there are many lessons you learn. You learn things about life, about others, but mainly, you learn things about yourself. What types of food you like, what colors you like, and even what hobbies you like. Though, one of the most important things a person learns about themselves is what they want to do in their future. Some may want to be a doctor, while others may desire to be a lawyer. For me, I learned two things I wanted to do in the future; writing and athletic training. I often get questions about this, because these careers are in two entirely different fields of study. As I made my way through high school, I had already known that writing was something I wanted to do in my life. Not only because I love it, but because I love telling stories. Stories are things that connect people across every culture. They give people ideas, thoughts, and emotions. They are also an important way of communication with others (we tell stories to each other daily). My main goal in life is to leave a lasting impact on others, whether it is through storytelling, or through helping them. To do this, I plan on majoring in either creative writing or English. My hopes are that by doing this, I will increase my knowledge about storytelling and writing, and help me achieve my aforementioned goal.

Athletic training was a career path that stood out to me in my sophomore year of high school. I have never been super athletic, but I did love participating in sports. It gave me a way of being involved with the community, even if I wasn't always good at it. Athletic training is kind of similar in that sense; it allows a person to be involved with the community/athletes while not being involved. This career also is one that can help others tremendously. In my school, I know of several athletes that have gotten injured during games or meets. Yet, we have no athletic trainer at our school. This is an issue because many main hospitals are over thirty minutes away, so if anything major happens to an athlete there will be a harder time getting them immediate help. Things like this made me realize that athletic trainers are important to schools such as mine, and how much they could actually help. This career is a harder one to achieve, but I plan on majoring in kinesiology, then getting my masters degree in athletic training.

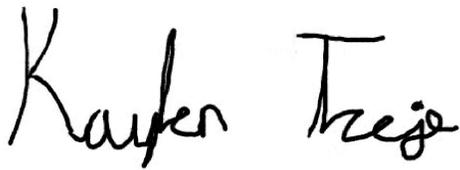

Majoring in two majors in college is a very ambitious thing to do, yet I believe it will be rewarding in the end. Though, with two separate majors, there are two separate costs. I am applying for this scholarship in hopes to lessen the cost, even if it is just a fraction of it. My education is important to me, and I want to be sure that I can put a majority of my focus on getting a good education. Another reason is because of my mom. My mom is my motivation for a lot of things, which includes applying for this scholarship. She is a teacher at Dove Creek High School, and is my sole provider. A teacher's income is not the highest, so we do not have a lot of extra money to spend. This scholarship would help both her and me be less stressed about money issues in the future. Overall, this scholarship would mean a lot to me and to my future, and help me get one step closer to my goals.

To Whom It May Concern,

I am writing this letter to enthusiastically recommend Kaylen Trejo for the higher education institutions and scholarships that she is pursuing. I have known Kaylen since 2022 in my role as the Dean of Students at Dove Creek High School and I have worked with Kaylen in the role of an academic, and college and career, counselor for the past three years. I have also coached her in high school track and field for the past three years and she shows her dedication in that this next year will make all four years competing in that sport.

Kaylen is one of our best and most motivated students. At the end of her Junior year in high school, she has already completed 26 college credits through Colorado Mountain College and Pueblo Community College. She has also taken the most challenging classes at our high school and has maintained a 4.32 grade point average. In addition to having the ability to thrive in her schoolwork, she is a pleasure to have in class and on campus. She works hard, is willing to help wherever needed, and is able to excel in a very difficult academic pathway.

In all of her classes, and as part of our school community, she has shown great interpersonal skills, and is a positive role model to younger students. Kaylen also loves being involved in athletics, especially track and field, and both on her athletic teams and in the classroom she has proven to be a leader, shows great character traits, and the performance of those around her tends to improve when she is there. She will be a fine addition to her chosen program and college, and I am confident that she will also continue to do well in achieving her goals. Without any reservation, I recommend Kaylen for the higher education institutions and scholarship programs that she applies for.

Sincerely,

To Whom It May Concern:

It makes me extremely happy to write this letter of recommendation on behalf of Kaylen Trejo. Kaylen is an incredibly bright, kind young woman who is very deserving of this opportunity.

I have worked closely with Kaylen as her English Language Arts teacher for three years of her high school career and have had her in six of my classes. As a student, Kaylen is at the top of her class in terms of grades, effort, behavior, and quality of work. She will be in the running for Valedictorian as a senior in a very academically competitive class. She has always held high expectations for herself and works hard to continuously meet those expectations by consistently completing her school work promptly, accurately, and rigorously. She is passionate about reading and writing and her skills have continuously improved. This year, as a junior, I have Kaylen in my concurrent enrollment college composition class where she has demonstrated her writing skills and interests through multiple essays on topics ranging from art and the women's suffrage movement to artificial intelligence and her recent trip to Amsterdam. However, mine is not the only college class that Kaylen is taking. In fact, before her senior year, she will have already earned 29 college credits. Plus, Kaylen has earned the Honor Roll, the Academic Letter, and numerous other academic awards each year of her high school career. Furthermore, as a sophomore, Kaylen was recognized by the school staff with acceptance into the MT Erwin chapter of the National Honor Society. This membership proves that Kaylen has gained respect and recognition for her scholarship, leadership, service, and character. Kaylen's academic performance proves her drive, integrity, and motivation, all of which I truly appreciate about her.

Aside from academics, Kaylen is also a positive and involved member of our school and community through multiple extracurricular activities. Not only have I been her teacher, but I have also been her student council advisor for three years, track coach for two years, volleyball coach for one year, and NHS advisor for one year. Kaylen is also part of STUD and Sources for Strength, all of which provide her the opportunity to challenge herself while improving our school culture and community. In her roles, Kaylen is always willing to volunteer her time for projects and do anything that needs to be done without being asked. Even though she has a very quiet and passive demeanor, through all of these avenues, I have witnessed Kaylen grow a great deal over the past three years as a confident student and a driven young woman with goals.

Personally, Kaylen is kind-hearted, thoughtful, empathetic, considerate, curious, driven, self-disciplined, and determined. All of her extracurricular activities, plus her stellar academic performance, and personal character make Kaylen noteworthy and deserving.

I recommend Kaylen Trejo to you without reservation and hold her in the highest esteem. I do not doubt that she will continue to work hard toward her aspirations and will be successful in both college and life. If you have any further questions regarding my recommendation, please do not hesitate to contact me.

Sincerely,
